TRONCE BUTTE IN FIRST GAME

Saints Rush Mountmen Off Their Feet and Win, 12 to 4.

MISSOULA TRIMS BOISE, AND ELECTRICS HELENA

Jachs, on Slab for Zion, Is Wild, but Is Effective Until Eighth.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Salt Lake, 12; Butte, 4. Missoula, 8; Boise, 2. Great Falls, 5; Helena, 1.

BATTERIES HERE TODAY.

Salt Lake—Heusser and Perkins. Butte—Quick and Hannah.

Blankenship's Saints romped away with the opener of the series with "Honest John" McCloskey's Mountmen at Cooley park Tuesday afternoon. The score was 12 to 4.

In the north, Missoula surprised everybody by taking the curtain raiser with the Irrigators at Boise 8 to 2, while the Great Falls Electrics, at Helena, trimmed Irby's Senators for the sixth time.

Yesterday's results gave the percentage table a severe shakeup. Salt Lake now holds second place undisputed while Butte drops from second to third position and Missoula comes from fifth to fourth, Boise drops to fifth.

By fast, aggressive work, Blankenship's men sewed the initial contest with the Mountmen up in the first two innings, counting twice in the initial period and five times in the second. The Saints were not content with this, however, and kept circling the bases until they had rolled the grand total up to twelve runs.

In the meantime, they blanked the Mountmen until the eighth period. Then Jachs, on the slab for Salt Lake, who again had trouble in locating the plate, got generous and interspersed hits with walks until the Mountmen had counted three times. In the ninth Orr and Blankenship helped Jachs to give the Mountmen a run, by throwing a little wide to first on Marshall's hot grounder and the second by allowing the throw to escape.

Jachs Again Generous. By his generosity in giving the Mountmen free transportation to deep holes, Jachs continually got himself into deep holes, but with the aid of sharp fielding, the big hurler always came out of the Mountmen without allowing the visitors to count until the ninth period. Besides walking five, Jachs hit one. He struck out nine men.

Besides fielding in brilliant form and running bases like a flash, with both cunning and daring, Blankenship's men had a pesky way of coming back with two men down and starting trouble. In the first, fourth and sixth innings the Saints showed a fighting spirit by hammering in a total of six runs after two men had gone out. This aggressive play took the heat out of the Mountmen and left them helpless, besides speechless.

McCloskey used three pitchers in the effort to stop the Saints from romping around the bases. Blankenship's men, however, treated all of "Honest John's" hurlers alike. Kane, McCloskey's star port pitcher, who started the game, lasted about one and one-third innings. After the Saints had counted four times, McCloskey turned to Kirshalder, a splitter, upon whom Blankenship's men pounded for eight hits and as many runs. When "Bulger" Walsh, the first man up in the seventh period, swung the ball over the right field fence for a home run, McCloskey yanked Kirshalder out and sent a hurrying call for Brown to come in from left field. With the Saints exhausted from circling the bases Brown held them rudderless for the last two batting periods. Brown allowed two hits and struck out two men.

Kirshalder walked nobody, but he hit two batters. He struck out two and Kane one. Jachs was particularly effective against "Homey" Joe Marshall, touted as a wonderful pitcher. In five times at bat Marshall got one lone single. Once the first time up, he indignantly struck out.

Blankenship started at bat for the Saints. In three times up he cracked out two bingles. The other time he was hit, giving him a batting percentage of 1.000. One of Blank's bingles was good for an extra base. Blankenship scored four of the Saints' dozen tallies.

Jachs was in trouble owing to inability to keep the ball in the alley from the ring of the zone, but effectiveness, coupled with sharp fielding, saved him for a time. First, leading the batting list, was walked in the initial session, and was sacrificed to second by Mathes. Jachs settled down, however, and forced Brown to foul out to Blank and struck out Marshall.

With two down, Blank was walked and sent to third when Foley missed little Cordtz's grounder. Orr doubled, scoring Blank and Cordtz, but went out trying to stretch his double into a triple. After striking out Dudy and Foley in the second, Jachs allowed Rocky, who stole second, to single, but Hannah went

Little Stories About Baseball

The Rash Bet of Mr. Wilmot

By W. A. Phelon

"Never judge a man by his looks," remarked Walter Wilmot, once a great outfielder of the National League.

"I played left field for Anson's team in that good old day, and it was some left field, I can assure you. It was the worst sunfield in the country, bar none, and when the red rays fell across that territory about the sixth inning every afternoon it was a task for a man with six eyes to look after anything that came out in left, fly, liner or grounder.

"I worked hard out there and did my best, but I know that some of them got away. The public hooted or sympathized, some of them knowing the conditions I was up against, and others thinking that an outfielder should get everything that came his way. I just did my best and took it out in vintuosity, built that ball yard and set left field where it was.

"One morning, while we were practicing, a rural looking cuss, who seemed to have just arrived on a load of hay, and had probably got into the park while bringing some grass seed to the groundskeeper, stood around while we were chasing the ball. After while he addressed himself to me.

"Seems to me, Mr. Wilmot," said he, "that you don't play that left field right. You'd oughta git some of them balls that is always gettin' by you."

"Naturally this made me tired. 'Go on, you Rubie,' I growled. 'What do you know about ballplaying? Like a school teacher, you talk through your hat.' 'Mebbe so,' said the Rubie, 'but I'd jest about bet a little money that if I

DOCTOR OPINES THAT ABE ATTELL MAY NEVER ENTER RING AGAIN

NEW YORK, May 2.—Rumors are current in boxing circles here that Abe Attell, American feather weight champion, may be compelled to retire from the ring. Attell's physicians say that the champion cannot box again for at least one year, because of the broken bone in his left arm in his recent bout with Frankie Burns.

Attell is more than 28 years old and is said to be rather dubious as to the future, for he fears a return of the injury when he attempts to resume operations.

Attell decides to retire there will be a scramble for his title. Jim Driscoll, the English champion, might well lay claim to it, but Driscoll announced recently that he was through with the ring forever.

RELEASES PERRINE, BUT SOON IS SORRY

McCloskey Concludes After Tuesday's Defeat He Will Need Veteran.

"Honest John" McCloskey evidently thinks that he was too hasty when he started Captain "Nig" Perrine Tuesday to take charge of Irby's Helena youngsters. Perrine left Salt Lake on a morning train for Helena to take charge of the Senators, but after Tuesday's defeat McCloskey saw that his team lacked the "old pepper" and at once wired "Nig" transportation and headed him off at Pocatello, ordering him to return at once to his "Mountmen."

Perrine is a veteran, having played with Washington in the American league and Kansas City in the American association. He was the "ginger factor" for McCloskey's squad and will arrive in Salt Lake in time for today's game.
